Descrizione

Objectives

This incentive under the Horizon Europe programme focuses on advancing research and innovation in the field of cancer. It aims to support eligible entities such as research organizations, academic institutions, companies, and public entities across Europe that are engaged in activities related to cancer prevention, diagnosis, treatment, and survivorship. The call encourages the participation of multidisciplinary consortia to address challenges and promote integrated cancer solutions.

Project Types

The eligible project types include collaborative research and innovation actions, demonstrations, pilot projects, and large-scale initiatives targeting specific cancer challenges identified in EU policy frameworks. Eligible expenses typically cover personnel costs, equipment, consumables, subcontracting, travel, and dissemination activities directly related to the project objectives. Projects should demonstrate clear methodologies, robust scientific approaches, and added European value.

Funding

Funding is provided in the form of non-refundable grants. The maximum co-financing rate can reach up to 100% for certain eligible entities, with specific rules applicable for different participant types. The available budget limits and minimum/maximum project amounts are regulated by the official call documents. Applicants must comply with defined thresholds for total eligible costs.

Key Aspects

The call defines a fixed maximum duration for funded projects, which is generally within 24 to 60 months, depending on the specific expected outcomes and project type. Projects must contribute to measurable performance indicators such as scientific publications, technology readiness, direct impacts on patient care, or the advancement of European cancer missions. Compliance with Horizon Europe rules and assessment criteria—such as excellence, impact, quality, and efficiency of implementation—is mandatory for all proposals. Detailed requirements, including mandatory indicators and deliverables, are set forth in the official guidance and model grant agreements.
